If,
as people,
our job [on the internet] were today:

to first, go home;

second, (e)valuate our [and each other's] glocal trusts [communities +/- (corps. of) persons +/- families];

third, find [on maps] people who need help (the most)...

...and fourth, connect with people who can give (the most) help;

fifth, build our networks of glocally trusted [community +/- (corp. of) person(s) +/- family] leaders;

and sixth, communicate;

If,
as people,
our job [on earth] were today:

to first, communicate [and eat!];

second, build our networks of glocally trusted [community +/- (corp. of) person(s) +/- family] leaders;

third, find [on maps] people who need help (the most)...

...and fourth, connect with people who can give (the most) help;

fifth, evaluate our [and each other's] glocal trusts [communities +/- (corps. of) persons +/- families];

and sixth, go home [and eat!];

then to what extent would we live in peace today
with better tools tomorrow?

If,
as people,
our job should be:

to first, see the roots of suffering;
second, do no harm;
third, share;
fourth, help;
and fifth, optimize health and wealth;

and if we acknowledge that we sometimes do not use powerful enough tools (goods and/or services) to see the roots of suffering;

and if we acknowledge that even if we have seen the roots of suffering,
that we sometimes do not use powerful enough tools (goods and/or services) to do no harm;

and if we acknowledge that even if
we have done no harm,
that we sometimes do not use
powerful enough tools (goods and/or services) to share;

and if we acknowledge that even if
we have shared,
that we sometimes do not use
powerful enough tools (goods and/or services) to help;

and if we acknowledge that even if
we have helped,
that we sometimes do not use powerful enough tools (goods and/or services) to optimize health and wealth;

then to what extent
(and to what extent are we being shared)
are we,
as valued members of our glocal communities,
(and to what extent are we being shared)
obligated to alleviate suffering

in the meantime

while we search for and/or build and then begin using powerful enough tools?
